neighborhood. Three great games will be played this afternoon. Princeton and Cornell are to meet at Manhattan Field. Crescents will battle at Eastern Park.

crack shins at Orange Oval.

Each one will be a battle royal, and is bound to afford a treat to the spectator, so the difficulty of choosing between them is not so great as might be supposed. The college men in this vicinity, of course, will favor their respective teams, but the average unspective teams, but the supposed. The college men in this section, and the injured men were sent to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

The train was running in five areas to average unspective teams, but the average unspective teams, and the average unspective teams, and the average unspective teams, but the average unspective teams, but the average unspective teams, and the average unspectiv matter by simply flipping up a coin

The games will be especially interesting from the fact that they will give the first good opportunity for judging of the relative merits of the several crack college teams. Very little is yet of the relative merits of the several crack college teams. Very little is yet known of the character of the new material that has been brought forward this season, and the few scattering games which have already been played have not shown any of the college teams in their best form.

Practice of the past two weeks, however, has knocked a good deal of the raw material into respectable shape, and as the colleges are putting forward their strongest men they may be expected to make a fine showing.

The game at Manhattan Fleid offers, perhaps, the most attraction for New York people. Princeton and Cornell have been bitter rivals ever since the fluke last year, when it was claimed by the Ithaca men that the New Jersey players backed out of a game that had been arranged because they feared defeat. Anyway, the men from up the Biate are down here for blood, and though they are not doing any loud boasting their friends say that she yellow-striped Jerseymen will have to do some hard hustling if they succeed in shutting them out. Before a New York crowd, too, Princeton will be on her mettle, and the general epinion is that the will have to look lively to her laurels.

Cornell has lost some of her best players of last season, while Frinceton has Cornell has lost some of her best players of last season, while Princeton has not been so unfortunate, but the new material is said to be first-class. The Ithaca men came to town yesterday, and in their practice at Manhattan Field seemed to be in excellent form. The make-up of the two elevens, as decided upon this morning, is as follows:

The game is to be called as near 2 o'clock as possible.

At Eastern Park the Quaker boys will find a formidable adversary in the Crescent team which has shown much improvement in form, as a result of recent hard practice. The University has many friends in this vicinity, and the game will draw a good crowd. The team, if anything, is stronger than it was last year, when it succeeded in shutting Princeton out, and its best players are all old hands, including Knipe, Osgood, Simmons, Vail and Woodruff. The teams will probably line up in the following order when the game is called at 3.30 P. M.;

Crescent

Some of Yale's cripples are out of the figures.

Some of Yale's cripples are out of the hospital and have returned to the field, so that the team is now a much stronger one than that which met the Crescents two weeks ago. The rush line has been bolstered up, and an obsportunity will be given the two new half-backs—Armstrong and Eaton—to show what sort of work they can do against a strong team.

Orange people are faithful and enthusiastic patrons of football, and as a lot of Yale gratuates from the city will go out to see the game, a big crowd at the Oval will give the collegians a warm welcome. The make-up of the teams is as follows:

Hinkey found great difficulty in securing the services of any of the graduate football experts. Ex-Capt. "Bill" Rhodes. Wyllys Terry, the noted half-back, and "Kid" Wallace, the famous end-rush have all shown up at New Haven within the past two days and are devoting their entire attention to getting the new material into shape. Rhodes is to have charge of the coaching for the rest of the season, and he came down to-day with the team from New Haven.

New Haven.

An important meeting of the Advisory committee of the Intercollegiate Foot-all Association will be held in this city this evening, probably at the Windsor Hotel, at which the undergraduate rule will come up for discussion again. It is believed that this much-vexed question will be settled finally, and it is certain that every effort will be made to spose of it satisfactorily.

It is rumored that Yale may recede from the position which she has all along taken on this question and consent to a modification of the rule if the opposition of Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania cannot be overcome.

to form in front of the ancient Van to Cortlandt mansion, the left on Broadway, The Second Battery, with the Northern forces, was to be posted on the high ground to the northeast of the swamp, and the First Battery, opposing, on the high ground to the cast of the mansion. The Signal Corps, divided impartially between the two combatants, get their share of the benefits of this "practice drill." as it is technically called, in the work of building elevated signal stations and the manipulation of the wigwagging signals.

The orders to Troop A, just returned from Trenton, were to "perform such duties as may be assigned to them."

This practice drill has been looked forward to with anticipations of much benefit by the soldiers and the officers. The order required that the whole movement be slowly and carefully executed, the number of rounds and volleys to be fired and the time and distance of rushes to be deliberately thought out and convoyed by distinct command, leaving nothing to the discretion of the men.

Thus the battle was to begin with the Seventh and a part of the Sixty-minth advancing slowly and by rushes pressing the Twenty-second and Twelfth back until their lines were parallel to the railway tracks. The Eighth comes to reinforce and an energetic defense begins with rapid firing.

The South has the best of it at first, but the Northern forces raily; the battle gets desperately earnest, and finally is declared a draw, like some memorable prize-fights. The soldlers sheath their sabres and "make up."

statement that the military feature of educational institutions is increasing, and he calls attention to the figures as affording "convincing evidence of the steadily increasing favor with which the American people regard an intelligent and ju dicious blending of military instruction and exercises with the scholastic course and exercises with the scholastic course of studies."

It is shown that the number of students at military colleges capable of military duty has increased about two thousand each year, and now is 17,519.

The suggestion is made that military instruction now provided for colleges should be extended to night schools in large cities.
